Hi Maryam,

Carmen is looking into the airplane exhaust issue – her initial thoughts are below...

I'll keep you posted with anything further she finds.

Hello Sara:

I also hope your weekend was grand and relaxing!

I have not heard of PCBs in airplane exhaust. I know PCBs are in a hydraulic fluid used on airplanes a long time ago called Skydraul? and likely manufactured by Monsanto. Airplane brakes may also contain PCBs. I will do a quick checking and see what can I find.

And you are most welcomed!!

Sincerely,
Carmen

Subject: PCBs in Airplane Exhaust

Hi Carmen,

Good morning! I hope you enjoyed a relaxing weekend. I'm writing because DTSC asked me a question with reference to the Riverside Ag Park site today, and I wonder if you might know the answer: Can PCBs come out of airplane exhaust?

I've never heard of this issue, and neither had my DTSC colleague...Any light you can shine would be appreciated!

Many thanks,

Sara
